

negotiating peace in Iraq

Speaker Retired Colonel Mike Kershaw

Open to the public.

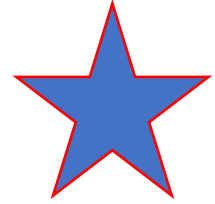

Retired Colonel Michael Kershaw, former commander of U.S. Army's 10th Mountain Division, honored for achieving peace accord in Iraq.

The U.S. Institute of Peace honored soldiers of the U.S. Army's 10th Mountain Division for their role in achieving a local peace accord in Iraq that offers a model for potential peacemaking and stabilization in the aftermath of ISIS. The peace agreement, in 2007, halted communal fighting in the region of Mahmoudiya, in an area that had been known as the "Triangle of Death." The accord continues to underpin the relative stability of that area a decade later.
